

Personal touches for personal spaces.

Putting your own stamp on your Shared Ownership home reflects your personality, with personal touches and embellishments that are unique to you and your family. We've created a helpful guide to help you add the special touches.

Personal pictures

Adding framed photos of friends, family and elements of life that mean a lot to you can go a long way to making your new space feel like home. Adding these personal touches can help to make that return home from work that little bit more special.

Indoor plants

Plants do not just belong outdoors, with a wide selection of indoor plants available for you to bring nature inside. Adding that outdoor element to the interior can add a touch of brightness, with the added touch of a pleasing fragrance.

Aesthetic features

Making your house feel like home means adding little tweaks here and there to make sure you're happy with how everything pulls together. This could be as simple as matching a footstool to a sofa, or something more complex such as installing spotlights.

Get your garden summer ready

When moving into your new home, it's worth getting your rear garden ready for entertaining friends and family during the summer months. Fairy lights, stepping stones and rattan furniture are all aesthetic ways to make sure your guests are impressed.

Home office decor

It's not just those who work from home full time who benefit from a home office or study, with personalisation to your workspace making life's administrative tasks a little more comfortable. Adding framed pictures of family, a customised mouse mat or pencil case and a mini sweet jar to keep topping up are many ways this area can be enhanced.
